Core Community plans 3 SEK meetings

GREENSBURG — Core Community is offering three opportunities for Southeast Kansas residents to attend a Community Informational Meeting.

• Nov.16, Noon, Ane Mae's Coffee & Sandwich Shop, 325 Pennsylvania Ave., Independence.

• Nov.16, 6 p.m., The Cardinal Station, 1301 S Main Street, Parsons

• Nov.17, 6 p.m., Fire Escape Coffeehouse, 126 W Main Street, Chanute.

Core Community recognizes that many in SEK struggle with poverty. We believe something powerful: Poverty can be solved when a community comes together with the right tools, trusted relationships, and long-term support.

Core Community is a relationship-based program that brings neighbors together to help families move from poverty and instability toward lasting stability.

Local leadership is vital to the program's success. Community leaders guide Core Community programs to ensure they're rooted in the community and positioned for long-term success. We are looking for people to serve on the Advisory Council, recruit volunteers, and open doors with churches and businesses; in short, we are looking for Community Champions.

Interested parties can submit a form at solvingpoverty.org to indicate their interest in volunteering, partnering, or becoming a community champion to help expand the program's reach and impact.

Core Community is a program of Youth Core Ministries based in Greensburg, Kansas. It was started in 2015 after leaders saw how many student families were caught in the cycle of poverty. Its mission is simple and bold: engage communities to lift families out of poverty.

Core Community has helped rural communities in Kansas change how they respond to poverty. Deborah Factor, CEO of Youth Core Ministries, said, "We do more than offer short-term help. We walk with families as they build stability, strengthen relationships, grow resources, and move toward a future filled with dignity and hope."

Core Community is now operating in 15 counties in Kansas, including Bourbon County, which has graduated 29 participants since its inception in 2023. Throughout the state, Core Community has graduated over 800 participants who saw a combined annual income increase of over $8 million and a decrease in welfare assistance of more than $450,000. The program also tracks progress in areas such as housing, transportation, employment, education, finances, health, relationships, child welfare, and hope.

The Core Community program begins with a 24-week weekly gathering where participants share a meal, receive childcare, and take part in classes focused on building life resources. Participants then connect with local volunteers who provide encouragement, friendship, accountability, and connections to community support. Relationships can continue for up to five years.

"This is not a quick fix," said Deanna Betts, Core Community SEK Community Coordinator. "It is a long-term commitment to walk with families as they build resources, confidence, and hope."

"People often ask what they can do about poverty in their own community," said Pamela Thompson, Community Champion, Crawford County. "Core Community gives local people a meaningful way to show up, build relationships, and help families move forward."

About Core Community

Core Community is a program of Youth Core Ministries, a 501(c)(3) organization serving youth and families in rural Kansas. Core Community is a holistic, community-based, relationship-focused program that equips local communities to support families as they build resources and move out of poverty. More information about Core Community is available at https://www.ycm-corecommunity.org/

Saturday, Oct. 31, six Galesburg Middle School students competed at the Cherryvale Chess Tournament. Due to low numbers, all students participated in the k-12 division, meaning that some of the local students competed against high schoolers. The medals and awards were given based on K-8 and K-12. In the K-8 division, Galesburg captured second place. The following students medaled: Jase-7th Caleb-11th Marshall-12th Ryan-13th.
