Hi, we’re the Community Foundation – nice to meet you!

GRACE SAMMOURY
Executive Director, Atchison Area Community Foundation

There are close to eighty non-profits in Atchison County; what does a small town do with so many charitable groups? We have a great variety of different charitable organizations, but sometimes it feels like they are silos, which can prompt the problem of how one gets connected to volunteer, how community members keep up with what each organization they care about is doing, and how we as a community can ensure that our resources are being used wisely and shared generously.

That’s where the Community Foundation finds its purpose. As an organization, we are able to provide connections between the amazing efforts happening in town. We spark and encourage collaboration. We connect donors with projects and organizations who are making a difference. Atchison is full of generous hearts, but it’s not always easy to see where all that kindness ends up – that’s where we come into play.

In 2019, the Atchison Area Community Foundation was started in order to serve the needs of every member of the community – those in need of services, those providing services, and those who want to support the missions of all of the incredible non-profits in town. Our mission is to build the Atchison community by facilitating charitable giving, fostering collaboration, and promoting a lasting culture of philanthropy, and we’re lucky to work in a community that cares so much. We host the All Aboard Atchison Match Day event each year, which has raised close to $1.5 million for our various non-profits in just four years. And we do more than raise money – we connect people with causes that they care about, educate the community on the amazing work happening around town, and invest in the future of Atchison by building endowments and facilitating grants and scholarships.

The chair of our board, Ethan Hausmann, says “It is important that the citizens of Atchison steward our resources intentionally to ensure success in the future. The foundation is a resource to address needs that arise.” The Atchison Area Community Foundation exists for the good of the Atchison Community, and our leadership wants to hear from community members what needs they see around our town. We exist to help the citizens of Atchison today, and to help promote a strong legacy for the citizens of Atchison in the future.

We’re thrilled to share more about all of the amazing things happening in Atchison. From organizations targeting food insecurity, to historical restoration projects, to community building initiatives and so much more, the Atchison Area Community Foundation is here to keep our community thriving.
