The grounds have provided over time space for the Saddle Club, a Little League ball diamond, buildings for livestock exhibits, and an open show arena. The Artex Manufacturing Company even used the building in 1967 and 1968 until their building was completed on Hwy. 75

#32 The 4-H Community Building, located on Highway 75 and West Holloway, serves as a meeting place for various community activities. It's used by the Southwind Extension Service, the American Red Cross Blood Bank, musical programs, political meetings, 4-H contests, exhibits for the 4-H/County Fair, and other groups. In the late 1940s, civic groups, farmers, and merchants raised money for the purchase of the 20-acre tract of land. Later, a tax levy provided for the concrete block structure. The building was completed in 1952. Furnishings were donated by the Home Extension Units, 4-H Clubs, civic groups, and many individuals.
