Mitchell County Hospital earns High 5 for Mom & Baby Recognition

Beloit, KS — Mitchell County Hospital Health Systems (MCHHS) continues to demonstrate its commitment to infant and maternal health by earning High 5 for Mom & Baby recognition, a statewide initiative developed by the United Methodist Health Ministry Fund to improve breastfeeding support and outcomes across Kansas.

High 5 for Mom & Baby is a voluntary program that encourages hospitals and birth centers to adopt evidence-based best practices that help mothers initiate and continue breastfeeding successfully. To be recognized, facilities complete a self-reported assessment and implement at least five of ten evidence-based practices, such as skin-to-skin contact after birth, individualized feeding support, rooming-in with newborns, staff training in lactation support, and connections to community breastfeeding resources.

"Breastfeeding plays a crucial role in the overall health of babies and mothers," said Katie Schoenhoff, Director of Programs at the United Methodist Health Ministry Fund. "Following the High 5 for Mom & Baby practices demonstrates Mitchell County Hospital Health Systems' commitment to helping families successfully initiate and maintain breastfeeding."

Research shows many mothers stop breastfeeding earlier than they planned, often due to lack of support, education, or workplace and community resources. High 5 facilities work to address these barriers through staff education, supportive policies, and practical guidance to families.

In addition to the distinction, MCHHS gains access to ongoing education, training opportunities, and a statewide network of birthing centers dedicated to improving outcomes for moms and babies. By maintaining these best practices, the hospital supports healthier starts for infants and stronger maternal health across the region.

Nicki Cleveland, Chief Nursing Officer at MCHHS, echoed the organization's commitment: "We are honored to receive this recognition and remain dedicated to providing the highest quality care and support for the families we serve."
